

Supporting those in need

CEUS is based on the idea of volunteers helping their community—including communities overseas.

More than 3,000 Salvadorans in North Jersey have received services from CEUS or participated in group events, including more than 1,110 English students.

CEUS believes that by supporting immigrants in the US, the group also helps the families they left behind, because many immigrants send much of their wages home in remittance checks.

CEUS also works directly for those in need in Latin America. In 1998, CEUS sent $7,000 and three containers of food and material aid to Central America to help the victims of Hurricane Mitch. In 2001, CEUS raised $90,000 to help the victims of two earthquakes in El Salvador, money that build more than 60 homes for victims of the disaster.
